Exercise of voting rights within the International Seed Testing Association

2. Designation of a Personal Member of the Association as an ISTA Designated Member

At Ordinary Meetings of the International Seed Testing Association (ISTA), rights to vote can be exercised only by Governments [ISTA Constitution Article IX(a)], in the following manner:

1. Each Government [as defined in ISTA Constitution Article IV (a)] must designate a Designated Authority [ISTA Constitution Article IV (b)] and appoint a representative thereof.
2. The Designated Authority must designate at least one Personal Member of the Association to become a Designated Member of the Association [ISTA Constitution Article IV (c)]. The designation must be signed by the appointed representative of the Designated Authority.
3. Each year, the Designated Authority must nominate one Designated Member to be the voting delegate for that year [ISTA Constitution Article IX (a)]. The nomination must be signed by the appointed representative of the Designated Authority.

With this designation the Designated Authority designates a Personal Member of the Association as an ISTA Designated Member.
